Course Format

This course is a fully online course, meaning there are no face-to-face class meetings. There are however, mandatory weekly “live chats (synchronous online class meetings). Live chats are generally scheduled for 1.5 hours. This course will incorporate a variety of activities, including online discussion threads, case analyses, and the online live chats. Online discussion threads will be based on weekly reading assignments, textbook cases, and assessments, as well as current Organization Development (OD) challenges. To make the class relevant to real world events, we will also discuss current events and challenges you may encounter at your work. Students will be expected to keep up with the online class schedule. In addition to class readings, students are encouraged to browse scholarly and business articles related to course content.

Weekly Format

Our term weeks run Monday through Sunday. Each term week will be opened on the Friday before that week begins. With the exception of the first, sixth, and eleventh weeks, you will have discussion questions and case studies assigned. We’ll discuss the case studies in our weekly live chat sessions.

Syllabus

This syllabus provides great detail about everything related to this course. Please review it carefully. It is our guide.

Course Site Layout

A few things to point out regarding the course site layout. The course menu on the left side of the site has the usual tabs, including the weekly learning modules. In addition, please note the following tabs:

- Syllabus/Resources: contains the Syllabus and useful explanations of how to use the Wiki tool that we’ll use in our case studies. Information on the term paper will also be available here.
- Blackboard Testing Guide – contains useful information on how to take exams in Blackboard.
- News Forum – If you have any information you want to share that’s specifically related to the course material, please feel free to post it here. (Please note that this is an educational site and postings must be “appropriate” and related to the course, and cannot include any advertising.)
- Ask the Instructor – This section enables you to post any questions of a general nature to this section, so that other students can benefit from these questions and the answers I provide to them. Students should check this section regularly to ensure they are getting the benefit of these Q&As. Of course, if you have a personal question, then simply e-mail me and I’ll respond only to you at your CLU e-mail address.
- Archived Chat Discussion– If you miss a live chat session rather than being relegated to the dungeon, you will need to review the recorded session and post a summary with your own insights on this discussion board.

Course Assignments and Requirements

Following are the assignments and requirements for this term.

Getting Acquainted

The first week contains a section called Getting Acquainted. This is a required section to enable us to get to know one another. To complete this section please provide the following information:

1. Your name and the name you prefer to be known by in class.
2. How many online classes you've taken (in total and at CLU).
3. The name of the organization where you work. (If you're not working, please tell us the name of the last organization where you worked.)
4. Your job title and a brief description of your job.
5. A brief summary of your present career goals.

Please note that this information is to be posted not later than Wednesday at 11:59 p.m. November 23, 2016.

Discussion Threads

There will be one discussion question weekly (weeks 2 through 10, excluding week 6 when you'll have a mid-term exam; week 11 is the final exam). Note that the word minimums for these posts have been instituted to ensure posts are substantive.

Each student will respond to the weekly question with an initial post consisting of a minimum of 150 words. Every attempt should be made to have the answers posted by Wednesday evening of each week.

Each student will then reply to at least two other students' initial responses. (This means you will have at least three discussion inputs weekly.) Typically, replies are not as in depth as the original responses, but each reply is to be a minimum of 75 words and a kindly-worded critical analysis of the other student's response, show good thought, be meaningful, and, if possible, include your own insight. The initial question, combined with students' responses and subsequent replies constitute a discussion thread. While, as noted above, you should aim to post your answer the discussion question by Wednesday evening weekly, all responses and replies must be submitted not later than the end of Sunday evening at the end of each class week in order to receive full credit. I will be commenting on some of your discussion posts weekly.

Case Analyses

You'll post a brief written analysis of an assigned case by answering the questions at the end of the case each week beginning week 2 and ending week 10, excluding week 6 (when you'll have the mid-term exam). These will be from either of our course books and will coordinate with the subject for that week.

These will be done as a team effort using the Wiki tool. We'll have three case studies each week (though you'll only be responsible for one that I'll assign). They'll be due Sunday evenings at the end of the class week. For example, the second week's case study analyses will be due no later than 11:59 p.m. on December 4th. We'll discuss these during our next live chat after they've been posted. I'll provide more information on the process of working on these as a team before week two. (The process will be relatively painless, but beneficial.)

Live Chat Sessions

We'll have live chat sessions every Wednesday evening from 6:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., PST, except the first week, which is the night before Thanksgiving, and the last week when you'll have the final exam. We'll make up the live chat from week one by having a live chat on Wednesday evening at our usual time the week of the mid-term exam (week 6). Information covered in readings and the PowerPoints will not necessarily be repeated in the live chats. These sessions provide the opportunity to discuss the material in more depth. We'll also discuss the prior week's case studies.

Further, each of you has valuable experiences in your workplace, and sharing these, as well as your own opinions on topics discussed in this class, add tremendously to the learning experience by bringing the subject to life. Each live chat will open with an invitation to share what has been happening in your workplace during the last week.

Organization Development Paper (The Term Paper)

You'll write a paper on an organization development that occurred during the last twenty years. There will be two components:

- Organization Identification Paper due Sunday of week 4.
- Organization Development Paper due Friday of week 11.

More information will be provided in the live chat session in week two and written information on the requirements for these papers will be posted under the Course Resources tab of the course menu.

Mid-term and Final Exams

There will be a mid-term exam in week six covering the material through week 5. We'll have a final exam in week 11 covering the material from week 6 through 10.

Note that each week, except 1, 6, and 11 will have discussion questions and case study assignments.

Attendance Policy

*Due to the importance of our live chat sessions to the learning experience of all our students, you will lose participation points for each class missed. If you miss more than two sessions, you may fail the course.

Having said that, we recognize significant life events can occur. Should you experience such a problem, please notify me as soon as possible that you will not be attending and the general reason. We want students to get the maximum benefit from this class. As is the case with any worthwhile endeavor, what's gained from it, is a product of the effort expended on the endeavor. The material discussed and your participation in these sessions are essential to your understanding of this subject and vital to all students' learning from one another's experiences and perspectives.

Note that while you are expected to attend these sessions, in the event you can't attend a session, you may review the archived sessions through the course site's live chat tab and using the RECORDINGS link and the date of the session missed. You'll then need to write a short summary of the session's discussions with your own insight into the subjects via the Archived Chat Forum under the Discussion Links tab of the course menu. However, this does not substitute for actual live chat attendance and you may be eligible for only 13 of the possible 15 points available with live attendance at the session.
