Course Description: A study of moral issues raised by the recent development of technology, including those related to computers, genetic engineering and the environment. The course examines how current technological achievements profoundly change our social, cultural and moral life and how they create moral dilemmas for our society at the same time.

Course Text: *Society, Ethics, and Technology, Fifth Ed., Wadsworth

Morton Winston - The College of New Jersey

Ralph Edelbach - The College of New Jersey

ISBN-13: 978-1-133-94355-6

Prerequisites: N/A.

Learning Objectives/Course Goals:

- The student will be able to articulate the differences between basic moral theories. These will include, moral egoism, cultural relativism, divine command theory, utilitarianism, deontology and virtue ethics.
- The student will understand and practice the writing of a "position paper" which will contain the following elements: thesis, thesis defense correlated with course materials and a rebuttal criterion.
- The student will enhance their confidence in oral communication through group discussions, individual presentations and other forms of class participation.

These educational objectives address the following CLU Student Learning Outcomes:

Professional Preparation

- a. Field Specific Knowledge and Experience
- b. Ethical and Professional Judgment
- c. Interpersonal and Teamwork Skills

Liberal Learning

- a. Written Communication Skills
- b. Oral Communication Skills
- c. Information Literacy
- d. Understanding of Cultural and Global Diversity

Character and Leadership Development

- a. Appreciation of diversity
- b. Growth in identity and values
- c. Principled leadership

Learning Activities: I strongly support adult learning strategies. In a nutshell, the least effective way to educate adults is through the "talking head" lecture mode. While it is necessary for an instructor to provide explanations, the most effective adult learning environments include break-out group (peer) discussions, presentations by members of the class, class discussion and multi-media approaches (which for this class will include videos that illustrate the various moral dilemmas under consideration).

Grading:

2 Quizzes (5 points each), 2 Discussion Boards (5 points total), class participation (5 points)	20 percent of course grade
Mid-term essay	40 percent of course grade
Final paper	40 percent of course grade

The percentages you obtain will then translate into a letter grade, using the following rubric:

95%-100%: A	77%-78%: C+
90%-94%: A-	71%-76%: C
86%-89%: B+	69%-70%: C-
82%-85%: B	65%-68%: D
80%-82%: B-	<65%: F

Number of Hours Outside of Class: This generally results in students working 2 hours for each 1 hour of actual classroom attendance. His course is required to have a minimum number of instructor led hours and a minimum number of homework hours to ensure accreditation. Below is the formula we will follow for this course

	Instructor led hours		Homework Hours		Remarks
	WEEKLY	COURSE	WEEKLY	COURSE
Class Meetings	3 hr 20 mins	36 hrs 40 mins
Discussion Boards		4 hrs		10 hrs	varies by student instructor led feedback online
Essay Reading Assignments			6 hrs	66 hrs	Average over 11 weeks
Online Quizzes		2 hrs		10 hrs	varies by student instructor led feedback online
Mid-term Essay Exam		4 hrs		10 hrs	varies by student instructor led feedback online
Final Term paper preparation		4 hrs		24 hrs	Instructor led feedback online
Total		50 hrs 40 mins		120 hrs

** In this chart the Carnegie Instructional Hours have already been converted to traditional clock hours; these are based on a 60-minute clock hour.

Note: The above hours will be built into the Schedule of Classes (below)

Attendance/Make-up and Late Policy: As indicated above attendance/class participation is part of your course grade. If you are going to miss a class you must provide advance notification with the reason. In such cases, I will provide you with a make-up assignment. Obviously, if you have a last minute emergency you may not be able to notify me prior to class, but do so as soon as practical. If the make-up assignment is completed you will not lose points, however, missing class sessions will impact your ability to do well on the mid-term essay exam and final paper. Later mid-term exams and final papers will not be accepted.

Other Considerations: A course in social ethics is a course in philosophy. Philosophy is not a particular religion nor is it a science course. Our evaluations will center on the use of "reason". This course is not a course designed to challenge anyone's preconceived moral paradigms. However, in order to be objective, it is important to "bracket-out" preconceived solutions to the social issues we will discuss. Give them a "fresh" objective reading. This is easier said than done. In philosophy we deal with developing and refining the appropriate questions that arise. This does not mean that philosophy does not seek "answers"...it means that philosophy does not seek superficial answers. And the rationales employed in philosophy should appeal to both the believer and non-believer alike. This means that philosophy attempts to use "reason" and "logic" that is neutral with regards to a particular orientation. I will cover this in the first night of class. At all times, I will expect that student treat each other with dignity and respect. This should be a class that you look forward to attending.
