The City

Located on the southern coast of China, seven million people call Hong Kong home. This dynamic city is one of the world's leading financial centers. Due to its strong business nature, people from around the globe choose to work and live here. Although Cantonese is the de facto official language, English is also widely spoken.

An extensive public transportation system of metros, trams, ferries, and taxis makes the city very accessible. Vibrant shopping districts, museums, parks and the famous Victoria Harbor are some of the highlights of this exciting area.

The University

Like the diverse and international city of Hong Kong, HKBU is a unique university marked by a vigorous blend of East and West. A significant number of international students contribute to its undergraduate population of approximately 5,000. It welcomes students from 100 worldwide institutions every year, allowing for a truly globalized environment.

The University's mission aims to provide a quality broad-based liberal education through academic and professional vigor.

The Program

Because all courses are taught in English, CLU students have the opportunity to enroll in a wide range of disciplines, which makes

"Hong Kong is so special in every kind of way, and you become a local within your first week. Maybe you won't master the language as fast, but people are so friendly that they will treat you like a friend no matter what."

-Mari Stromsvag '10

HKBU an excellent study abroad destination for students from most majors. Hong Kong offers a unique window into China and acts as a gateway to other Asian countries—something exceedingly important to understanding today's world marketplace.

Housing

Students live on campus in residence halls and may request to share a room with a local student, a Mainland China student, or another international student. No meal plans are available; however, there are many dining facilities on campus and in the surrounding areas.
