How to Create a Discussion Forum

1. Access the Discussion Board, by selecting Discussions from the item list.
2. Make sure Edit Mode is turned ON. (Upper right-hand corner of screen.)

3. If this is your first time on the Discussion Board, it will be blank. Select Create Forum. It is recommended to create an “Ask Your Instructor” forum first.

4. Enter “Ask Your Instructor” in the Name field. This is where students can ask questions and everyone can see everyone’s questions and answers.

   a. In the Description field, type “Please ask any questions you have for your Instructor here. If you have a personal issue, please email directly.”
b. Scroll down the forum page. These settings are where you can control availability by dates and time. Leave blank if you don’t want to limit availability.

c. Scroll down to Forum Settings. Three key settings are: Grade Discussion Forum, Allow Attachments and Allow Author to Delete Own Posts. If you want the gradebook to automatically create a column for each discussion forum you create, select this setting and enter the number of points the discussion is worth. If you want to allow students to add attachments to their discussion posts (MS Word document, videos, PowerPoints, etc.), select this setting. If you want to allow students to delete their own posts, select this setting.
d. Select Submit.

Note: It is recommended to create a new forum and provide your discussion board expectations and expected netiquette. To do this:

1. Create another Forum. Select Create Forum.
2. Title it “Discussion Expectations.”
3. In the Information field, provide your expectations. Select Submit. Example:

   !Expectations for Course Discussions

   * Expectations for Course Discussions:
     - Number of posts and replies
     - Word count
     - Citations
     - Take a stance? Argue against? Move forward?

   * Netiquette:
     - Appropriate use of language and tone
     - Your expectations for grammar, punctuation, text fonts and colors
     - Respect and consideration for other students
     - Use of sarcasm, humor, and/or the posting of jokes
     - Issues of privacy and information sharing outside of class

Note: It is recommended to create a new forum and develop a low stakes discussion to give everyone a chance to get familiar, adjust and reset.

2. Title it “Week 9: Discussion #1 – Welcome!” – or whatever week it is during the course.
3. In the Information field, develop your discussion questions. Select Submit. Example:

   Hi Everyone! I know you had to make a quick adjustment due to our campus closing. We have changed from meeting in person to meeting online and this may be new to some of you. So, for the first discussion, let’s talk about what is happening.

   Select the "Week 9 Discussion: Welcome!" link then select "Create Thread."

   Discussion Questions:
   1. Where are you located for class right now?
   2. How does it feel to have distance between us?
   3. Have you ever taken a CLU class online? Or other courses online?

How to Edit a Discussion Forum

1. Hover your mouse to the right of the Discussion Forum title (Ask your Instructor) and a “chevron” will appear. (Looks like this: 🡹) Select the chevron and a drop-down menu appears. Select Edit.

   You can now edit information and settings. Select Submit to save changes.
How to Reply to a Discussion Post (Thread)

When a student posts a discussion thread in a discussion forum, the instructor may want to reply to the post (or thread). When a post has been submitted, the Forum name bolds and the “Unread” column adds the post.

1. Select the forum name to open the forum. (Ex: Ask Your Instructor)

2. In the forum, posts will appear. Select the thread. (Ex: I have a Question.)

3. Select Reply.
4. Type your reply. You can upload a file if necessary.

5. Select Submit and your reply is posted.
How to Create Effective Discussion Prompts

Determine the objective. Before developing a discussion question, first determine what you want students to achieve.

1. Determine the type of question.
2. Engage the students.
3. Assess the question.
4. Be involved.

The following two resources help with understanding how to create effective discussion prompts.

How to Facilitate Discussions

The Discussion Board is a venue for interaction and critical thinking. They can also be repetitive, monotonous chores to complete. Understanding how to facilitate meaningful discussions that engage learners and promote a healthy online community is important.

How are discussions on-ground different than discussions online?

Remember, your “presence” online is very important. You might guide a discussion that is straying from the intended discussion. You might challenge a discussion that is moving forward. The more an instructor participates, the more students participate!

Inappropriate Posts

If a student posts something you deem inappropriate, take a screen capture or a picture with your phone. Save this picture to your hard drive. Hover your mouse over the Reply button and the delete button will appear. Select Delete.
Discussion Board FAQs

1. Can a student post an anonymous post?

   Yes. When creating a discussion forum, enter the name and discussion information. Then scroll down to settings and select the box next to “Allow Anonymous Posts.” Then select Submit. This must be done for each forum you want students to be allowed to produce anonymous posts. Students will have the option to post with their name or as anonymous.

2. Do all the students see a question posted to the Ask Your Instructor Forum?

   Yes. It is recommended you tell your students if they have a personal question or a question they only want the instructor to read, use email.

3. Can I copy from MS Word and paste into the discussion board?

   Yes. However, once you paste, you will need to remove the Word formatting after you paste the text in the editor, select all the text and select the Remove Formatting icon.

4. Is there a quick tutorial to learn the basics of Discussion Boards?

   Yes. Please select this link. It looks a little different due to the design of the course but the features are helpful.

5. Why can't I see my discussion post?

   Check if you accidentally saved your contribution as a draft. Return to the forum page, access the Display menu, and select Drafts Only.

   Select Search at the top of the main discussion board, forum, or thread page and search for a term you used in your message.

   Perhaps you didn’t select Submit after creating your post.

6. What is a forum?

   A forum is an area of the discussion board where participants discuss a topic or a group of related topics. Within each forum, users can create multiple threads.
